British Guiana Is Approved By Experts
For Refugee Colonies

British Cool to Project
By Jewish Telegraphic Agency
LONDON—The British government is not enthusiastic about possibilities for settlement of refugees in British Guiana, it was learned reliably. A White Paper covering the government's policy was believed to assert that there were only limited possibilities for refugee settlement. It was not expected that the statement would announce financial support by the government for colonization in Guiana.

By VICTOR M. BIENSTOCK
Jewish Telegraphic Agency
LONDON—The first concrete result of the Intergovernmental Refugee Committee's world-wide search for new havens for refugees emerged this week when an Anglo-American expert's committee unanimously approved utilization of uncultivated territory in British Guiana and the British government drafted a statement approving colonization in its South American colony. It was expected that the committee's report, without appendices, would be published this week and that Colonial Secretary Malcolm MacDonald would make a statement in the House of Commons, issuing a White Paper containing the government's policy.

The commission reported very favorably on Guiana's possibilities and agreed that the colony could absorb large numbers of refugees after a comparatively short period of pioneering work. The commission discovered a large belt of fertile black soil in the interior of the colony, the existence of which had previously been unknown. The commission also reports the observations of individual members, who expressed themselves as most optimistic about the possibilities, provided a prepared and well organized scheme of colonization is followed. The British government indicated willingness to assist in a solution of the refugee problem. It is believed that the government will take the necessary measures to open the colony to refugees. It is believed that when the plans for settlement are drawn up, they will provide that a large proportion of the settlers will be drawn directly from Germany. At the same time there will be a drawing off of refugees from countries of temporary shelter in Europe to make room for others from the Reich.

The opening of British Guiana will, it is believed in informed quarters here, result in a considerable improvement in the refugee situation. Progress is being made in the establishment of a corporation to finance refugee settlement in overseas countries and an improvement in the German attitude toward emigration.

A change for the better in the emigration situation is expected as result of the recent visit to Berlin of Robert T. Pell, vice-director of the Intergovernmental Refugee Committee. In recent months, Reich Jews with visas for other

Czechs Like Jews

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency
NEW YORK—A Prague dispatch to the New York Times reported that "Jews have never been so popular with ordinary Czech people as today." Reporting on the National Unity party's "remarkable success" in its campaign for members, the correspondent continues: "On all sides one hears tributes to the people's spirit, and the warmest of these come from Jews, notwithstanding the fact that they know severe legislation against them has a place in the government's program. Jews have never been so popular with ordinary Czech people as today. Sympathy and practical help are extended to these people, who are known and know themselves to be doomed."

Prices For Killing
By Arabs Decline

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency
JERUSALEM—Wages for murder have fallen by half in Palestine lately as a result of depletion of the terrorists' treasury due to waning support from the Arab populace.

As a consequence of the British army's success in breaking up large gangs terrorizing the countryside, individual political assassinations in the cities have assumed new prominence, but, according to information obtained by the J. T. A., the Arab assassins are now being paid cut-rates as follows: For murdering an Arab, 5 pounds; an Englishman, 3 pounds; a Jew, 1 pound.

The seeming anomaly of a higher bounty for killing an Arab than an Englishman or Jew is explained by the fact that this is the most dangerous assignment of all, since in accordance with the unwritten Arab law, the victim's relatives must not rest until they have taken revenge. They have underground ways of discovering the identity of the assassin more effective than the facilities of the police, and since most Arabs secretly possess guns, they have the means for executing vengeance.

Killing an Englishman does not present the same hazard, but as all Englishmen in Palestine, including civilians, carry licensed firearms, it is still regarded as a more dangerous job than murdering a Jew, and accordingly brings an intermediate payment. As for Jews, most of them are still unarmed, so they are regarded as easy marks.

These prices are paid for killing ordinary citizens. There is a special schedule of bonuses for certain prominent personages. The price placed on the head of Fakhri Nashashibi, "moderate" Arab leader and outspoken opponent of the former Mufti of Jerusalem, for instance, is 100 pounds or a job at a good salary on the staff of the Mosque of Omar in Jerusalem—a

Republican Party Sponsors Bill Aimed At Uniform Groups

BY CLAYTON KNOWLES

Jewish Telegraphic Agency
ALBANY—The Republican party has placed before the legislature a bill making it a penal offense to wear the uniform of a foreign military, semi-military or storm troop organization. The bill, designed to bar activities by uniformed groups such as the German-American Bund, was introduced by Joe R. Hanley, senate majority leader, and Oswald D. Heck, speaker of the assembly, at the request of Edwin F. Jaekle, chairman of the Republican State Executive Committee. Those convicted under the law would be subject to imprisonment for not more than a year or a $1,000 fine, or both.

In a letter to Hanley and Heck, Jaekle said: "Enclosed herewith is a draft of an amendment to the penal law designed to prohibit in New York State vicious, un-American propaganda and demonstrations in sympathy with foreign countries and in conflict with American principles. I sincerely hope that you will use your influence to bring about introduction and passage of this bill in the legislature."

"It goes without saying that groups masquerading dishonorably in the guise of foreign adherents have incited bitterness and strife in this state, particularly because of the intolerance and racial prejudice which they advocate. The unpatriotic and subversive conduct of such groups is a constant menace to the peace, comfort and good-will of the people of our state, and the entire United States for that matter."

Speaker Heck and Jaekle are of German descent. The speaker's father is publisher of an anti-Nazi German-language paper in Schemectady.

Governor Lehman received two bills for signature which strengthen the present law banning racial discrimination in places of public accommodation. One bill broadens the definition of such places to include retail stores and establishments, beauty parlors, public halls

Eternal Light for Palestine Pavilion Now in New York

NEW YORK.—The Eternal Light that will burn in the Memorial Hall of the Jewish Palestine Pavilion at the New York World's Fair is here shown in the Synagogue of Congregation Shearith Israel, New York, where at a solemn ceremony it was given into the custody of Dr. David De Sola Pool (right), rabbi of the congregation, which is the oldest in this country. Other participants in the ceremony were, left to right, Dr. Hirsch Manischewitz, president of the Federation of Palestine Jews of America; Abraham Idelson, director of the Tel Aviv Levant Fair, in whose studios the Palestine Pavilion exhibits were built, and Dr. Israel Goldstein, who, as chairman of the Pavilion Board of Directors, handed the Light over to Dr. Pool.

The Light, or Ner Ha-Tamid, which stands on a bronze engraved pedestal and burns sanctified Palestinian olive oil, was kindled by Rabbi Moses Ornstein at the Wailing Wall, Jerusalem, on April 9, and was brought to this country by a representative of the Jewish Agency. Its installation in the Palestine Pavilion will form part of the official opening exercises of the exhibit.

Prince Paul Hears Chief Rabbi's Report

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency
BELGRADE—Prince Regent Paul has received in audience Chief Rabbi Isaac Alkalay, who informed him on the life of the Jewish communities and on the recent Congress of Yugoslav Jewish Communities. The Union of Jewish Communities has published statistics showing that foreign Jews living in Yugoslavia total 624 families, numbering 2,182 individuals, in addition to 450 refugees residing in the country.

and elevators of buildings occupied by two or more tenants, to insure equal rights regardless of race, color or creed. The other requires public officials to make a sworn statement of no prejudice when passing over eligible applicants for civil service posts in favor of eligibles lower on the list. Both were sponsored by Senator Schwartzwald and are part of the joint legislative commission's program on racial discrimination.

Another Schwartzwald bill, prohibiting racial or religious discrimination in civil service employment, was passed by the senate.

Police of Bucharest are closely watching the activities of persons who obtain money from desperate refugees on the pretext of providing them with emigration possibilities. Hundreds have been stranded at the Black Sea port of Constanza as a result of the activities of these agents. Bucharest Jews are collecting a fund of 3,000,000 lei to save from starvation a group of 150 Jews released from the Dachau concentration camp in Germany who were enticed to Constanza a month ago by a Vienna travel agency which promised them final settlement abroad. Harrowing scenes occurred at the port when refugees repeatedly made unsuccessful attempts to smuggle themselves aboard departing ships.

Shovuos, May 24

"Shovuos," the Festival of Weeks which falls on the sixth day of the Jewish month, Sivan, will be celebrated on the 24th day of May this year. By Orthodox and Conservative Jews it will be observed two days; by the reform wing of the synagogue, for one day.

Originally called the Festival of Weeks because the holiday marked the end of the grain harvest when bread baked from the new crop of wheat was offered as a sacrifice, the holiday also came to be identified with and celebrated as the anniversary of the giving of the law to the Jewish people at Mt. Sinai.

At the beginning of the nineteenth century, Reform Jews gave the holiday a new significance by inaugurating the ceremony of confirmation for boys and girls. The service was instituted because the holiday marked the confirmation of the Jewish people in their faith when Moses brought down the tablets of the law from Mt. Sinai. The practice of confirming Jewish youth on this day has spread widely.

The Book of Ruth which tells the story of Ruth's entry into the fold of Judaism is read in the synagogue on the holiday, and homes and synagogues are decorated with the greenery of the season.

Foreign Minister Grigore Gafencu of Rumania, in his conversations with the British government this week, received a promise that London would examine proposals for Jewish emigration from Rumania, it was understood. The assurances were said to be similar to those given to Foreign Minister Josef Beck of Poland. In diplomatic circles it is believed that there will not be concrete developments on this question for some time. It is considered most likely that Poland and Rumania will consult between themselves to reach agreement on a policy of Jewish emigration.

Plan Celebration For Salomon Film First Showing

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency
NEW YORK—Warner Brothers gave a preview of "Sons of Liberty," technicolor short depicting the part played by Haym Salomon in the American Revolution, before a small group of exhibitors and newspaper men. The film, to be released for nationwide distribution, will be given its first public performance in Chicago on May 21 in connection with a dinner sponsored by the Patriotic Foundation, at which will be displayed a model of the $50,000 Lorado Taft monument of Salomon, George Washington and Robert Morris.

The film features Claude Rains, noted character actor, in its title role and the cast includes other prominent actors. It is one of a series of pictures filmed by Warner Brothers in the interests of promoting better understanding of democracy and the history of the United States. Reviews in the trade press have been unanimously enthusiastic.

ZIONISTS PREPARE FOR MID-WEST MEET

• PEOPLE And • PLACES

By
Seymour
Pinkus

Say, kiddies, would you like to hear
A sweet and appropriate rhyme?
Well, draw closer, lend an ear:
The grass is getting greener all the time!

Taking advantage of the warm and summery weather and the aforementioned green grass at Turkey Run last Sunday were the Iota Nu's, you know, Jack Larman and Joan Weiss, Bob Careskey and Sally Roth, Joe Careskey and Sylvia Mairson, Sammy Smulyan and Natalie Stoklin and Harry Hochman and Evalyn Newman. Bob, Harry and their dates couldn't resist the temptation of a nearby creek, so they upped and went wading.

Say, speaking of Evalyn Newman, a party was given in her honor last Thursday night, and afterwards the whole gang went to Sam's Subway. Well, just imagine their collective surprise when they saw none other than Dixie Dumber, yup, she of the movies, sitting there and dining with her mother. From all reports she is a mighty fine and pretty gal.

Another German refugee was fitted into the pattern of the American work-a-day world when Alexander Haas received employment a short time ago at Barry's cleaners. Long live Democracy.

Edna Weisman is sporting a new Plymouth and has asked me to invite every single one of you to go riding with her. The only time I saw the buggy, Edna wasn't driving, Normie, Wormie, her brother, was.

Bunch of kids had a nice time at the Indiana Roof Sunday night and among the twisters and twirlers were Dr. Ben Fisher and a girl who's first name I believe is Lillian, Bob Pallman and Ann Adler, who, by the way, has just returned from Florida with a nice golden tan, and Herman Logan with Justine Fineberg. Justine, you know, is chairman of the Fireside group who will hold their party at the Variety club come this Tuesday night. On the invitations, the girls are asked to invite "their favorite date," so I figure many a guy will be on the anxious seat for the next few days.

I went into the Indiana Fur Company the other day to pick up some copy and received quite a surprise to see Florence Slutsky working there. Now, young ladies, you'll know where to find one of this burg's most active and willing organization workers.

I told Miss Evadne and Miss Hilda Hibben that I would be very happy to give them a plug in my column this week. You see, they're really fine photographers, and when they said that this week they would specialize in horse pictures, I knew right then that it would be a perfect spot for said "plug." Get it?

I think I said something last week about Estelle Levin going down to the Kentucky Derby and I'd figured the young lady would make quite an impression. I didn't expect though, that she'd wind up viewing the hay burners gallop from a box along with (don't faint when I tell you this) Doris Duke's cousin, Mrs. Martha Bachman McCoy and her husband, Tom McCoy. She is the daughter of the late Senator N. L. Bachman. Boy, that's really hobnobbin' with the social register! Estelle's date was Ben Cash, prominent Chattanooga lawyer.

As this goes to press, Sidney Litvak, Conrad Pallman, Werner Hineman, Sidney Tuchman and Manuel Dichner have been initiated to the Ultra Acme club. The boys, during last week, had to appear in public with well-manicured and highly painted nails, just like the ladies. I'll bet they're glad the whole thing's over.

Somebody's been sending me epistles and temping me to publish them. Well, he or she swears that they are all true, so here goes:

M. G. and Sam Sax have eyes only for each other, and it really must be love. H. G. still has a soft spot in his heart for B. S. and N. V. and Babe D. are still seeing each other quite regularly.

E., you've been holding out on us. De ol' debbel, love, has crept up on you, ain't it? Anyway, Jerry Solomon didn't come 160 miles from Gary twice in the last three weeks just because he enjoys the ride. Arv Rothchild informs me that he is about to fall in love again. Is it the weather or have you really got somebody sold, and I don't mean on magazines!

The United Hebrew Congregation had a nifty dance last Sunday night at Kirshbaum and I presume that everybody had a grand time. Some of those jitterbugging around the floor were Alex Lazaar, Sam Patterson, Phil Hyman, Harry Stein, Rose and Bess Draizer, Helen Ann Cohen, Joe Schwartz and Bernice Cohen, Bill Leff and Isreal Simon, Beverly and Joe Budnick, Ann and Julius Bryan, Mollie and Adolph Frank and many others. Shaaron, Mr. and Mrs. Frank's three-year-old daughter, was approached by Emil Mantel, who asked her if she was a little Gypsy. "Nope," answered the little one, I'm a little Jew!

See you next week folks.

HILLMAN'S:

This week I'd like especially to emphasize how easy and pleasant it is to shop at HILLMAN'S. You know, many of you at one time or another have purchased something, taken it home, and haven't felt quite satisfied. Still, you hesitated to return the garment and seek an adjustment, as past experience proved that one doesn't receive a very courteous reception when something is returned. Well, I want you to understand thoroughly that at HILLMAN'S you can feel free and easy when you want an exchange or refund. Of course, I don't believe any of you would seek these courtesies without just cause, or just for the idea of doing it, but if you are not satisfied, if you feel you have something coming to you, come in and you'll be greeted with a smile. No red tape, no waiting, no sour remarks to make you feel fidgety and ill at ease. HILLMAN'S believe that it is just as important to refund and exchange in a friendly and helpful manner as it is to sell.

News Note: Libby Maurer, younger sister of Sally, is singing over WIBC every Saturday at 10 a. m. on the Children's Hour. She has a lovely voice.

L. S. AYRES BAKERY DEPARTMENT:

I'd just like to remind you again that this Sunday is Mother's Day; however, few of you should need your memories refreshed. Think of Mom, think of her with something sweet and beautiful, something that Mr. Vanderbilt and his competent staff have prepared for just this occasion. That famous Van Deusen angel food cake covered with old-fashioned boiled icing and appropriate decorations for only $1.25, is very nice. So is the two-layer white cake with clusters of pink roses at $1.60. Please remember that you can phone your orders in and you will receive prompt and personal service. But hurry, the time is growing very short.

Girls, and you men, too, make this Sunday one for your Mom to cherish. She never forgets you; remember her, please do.

INDIANA FUR COMPANY:

The Davidson Brothers ran a clever ad in one of the local daily papers a few days ago and suggested that you ladies put your furs in a fur doctor's care. Well, I'd like to pass that same message on to you. Give your coat a much needed operation, rid it of its chronic ills by having it cleaned, glazed, new tie strings attached, electrified, demothized and new buttons sewed on at a very small price. So far, every operation undertaken by the INDIANA FUR COMPANY doctors has proven a brilliant success, so send for the ambulance in the form of a bonded messenger and rush that sick pelt to the fixers. The phone, Lincoln 2378.

Special Arrangements For Groups at Jewish Pavilion Announced

Special
NEW YORK.—A special service for organizations planning group visits to the Jewish Palestine Pavilion at the New York World's Fair has been inaugurated by the Pavilion Women's Committee, Mrs. Israel Goldstein, chairman, has announced. Special accommodations will be provided for larger groups by reserving a number of guides for them and by arranging for group luncheons, teas or dinners at the Cafe Tel Aviv in the Pavilion grounds, where special Palestinian dairy dishes will be featured.

Organizations wishing to make group visits are urged to communicate with Mrs. Goldstein, at the Jewish Palestine Pavilion offices in the Empire State Building, New RIO DE JANEIRO — Reports in official quarters that immigration quotas for Germany and Poland would be increased led hundreds of refugees and others with relatives in Europe to besiege the foreign ministry, the refugee-aid society and private agencies, seeking permission to bring their kin to Brazil. It is believed that a large proportion of the applications would be granted.

York, as far in advance as possible, and to specify two or three alternative dates, as every effort is being made to avoid a conflict in dates among various groups. The time of the day for which the visit is planned, the anticipated attendance and the hour and a number of reservations for any Cafe Tel Aviv function desired are among the items of information heads of organizations are requested to furnish to the Women's Committee in making their application for a special date for a visit to the Pavilion.

When the Palestine Pavilion is opened in the latter part of May visitors will be able to purchase a special souvenir volume which not only will provide them with a background for a more thorough understanding of the exhibit but will serve as a permanent memento of their visit.

Entitled "The Palestine Book," this beautifully bound and profusely illustrated volume contains authoritative information on the economic, political, cultural and social phases of the modern rehabilitation of Palestine as well as a description of the ten exhibit halls in the Pavilion.

Among the contributors to the "Palestine Book," which is edited by Meyer W. Weisgal, director of the Pavilion, are Dr. Chaim Weizmann, John Gunther, Thomas Mann, Dorothy Thompson, Pierre van Paassen, Israel Brodie, Bernard Flexner, Dr. Solomon Goldman, Dr. Israel Goldstein, Rose Halprin, Dr. Hugo Herrmann, Colonel Frederick H. Jewish Soldiers March To Front, But Bias Goes On

By VICTOR M. BIENSTOCK
By Jewish Telegraphic Agency
LONDON—It had been hoped that the drawing of countries such as Rumania and Poland into closer alliance with Great Britain and France would result in moderating influences being strengthened and general improvement in the Jewish position. The wholehearted support given by the Jewish populations of both these countries to defense activities of their governments would also, it was thought, be appreciated and governments calling for their nationals to arms for the defense of the Fatherland would not be so ungracious as to proceed at the same time with measures degrading these citizens or depriving them of their rights.

Well, at the same time as the Rumanian Government had thousands of Jews under arms in the detachments rushed to protect the frontiers, the process of revision of citizenship of Jews was being continued and the State Liquor Monopoly was cancelling the licenses of Jewish veterans wounded in the Great War and of the widows of Jews who fell fighting for Rumania then. And one Bucharest newspaper was permitted to come out with a special number featuring articles on ritual murder.

And while Poland called tens of thousands of young Jews to the colors and cheerfully accepted the hundreds of thousands of zlotys contributed by the Jews voluntarily to the national defense loans, her Foreign Minister was in London explaining to the British Government that Poland had too many Jews and making British agreement to help Poland solve this problem part of the price to keep Poland out of the arms of Hitler.

Just as soon as there is a lull in the tension, you can expect to hear of "surplus Jews" in Eastern Europe again.

Rokach, Dr. A. S. W. Rosenbach, Dr. Arthur Ruppin, Maurice Samuel and Dr. Stephen S. Wise.

Weizmann Rushes To London; Britain Refuses To Yield

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency
JERUSALEM—Dr. Chaim Weizmann left for London by airplane Tuesday as the Holy Land issue neared a climax with the impending issuance of a British statement of policy. Meanwhile, Arab terrorists shot and killed a Jewish special policeman.

Meanwhile, two new colonies were established with the usual precautions against raids by terrorists. One was founded by the Poel Mizrahi, religious Laborite group, on 2,200 dunams (about 500 acres) of land near Tirath Zvi; the second by the Shomer Hatzair (the Youth Guard), on 6,000 dunams near Ein Hashofet, colony named for former Supreme Court Justice Louis D. Brandeis.

Seek Appointments

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency
LONDON—Efforts were being made this week to arrange interviews with Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax, Colonial Secretary Malcolm MacDonald and other government leaders to hear a last minute plea by Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of the Jewish Agency for Palestine, to delay publication of the British policy on Palestine.

It was reliably learned, however, that the final decisions were to have been taken before Dr. Weizmann's arrival from Jerusalem by plane Wednesday night.

Between You and Me

by PAUL A. PETERS

POEM: Inconspicuously buried in a recent London dispatch on the Jewish situation in Bohemia and Moravia was the following item: "The Gestapo in Prague has arrested the poet Georg Mannheimer, editor of the periodical, Wahrheit." . . . Some time ago this column reported that Mannheimer was planning to visit this country for a lecture tour. . . . He was to talk on the importance of Czech democracy to world democracy. . . . The lecture was to be called, "Praha—a Suburb of New York." . . . That, alas, was last September. . . . Early this year, shortly before the German occupation of Prague, Dr. Mannheimer wrote a prophetic poem. . . . Sent in a personal letter to a friend in the United States, the poem is published here for the first time.

They sit together and draw near
Their souls are pressed down by fear
And each does at the other leer:
Is it my turn yet?

They do not know, what is the clock?
The pendulum forgot to rock
They're only waiting for the knock:
Is it my turn yet?

They sit in darkness as in a tomb
They are themselves a part of gloom
The first stone cracks into the room:
It is your turn now.

THEATER: When passing through New York on the way to the World's Fair, don't fail to stop off for an evening of unrestrained hilarity, flavored with a snappy dash of "social significance," currently on display at the Labor Stage under the billing of "Pins and Needles." . . . The ILGWU production, manned, mounted and manufactured by as sparky a crew of garment workers as has ever invaded the sphere of sock and buskin, is absolute tops in adult entertainment. . . . If New York's professional stage provides a more thoroughly satisfying and stimulating combination of music and mad mockery, then your humble servant would like to see it. . . . There's acid, flavored with a bit of honey, in every ditty. . . . Arsenic, coated with a thin layer of chocolate syrup, in every skit. . . . Every stuffed shirt in the land should be presented with a ticket to the latest edition of the revue that has been running for more than a year. . . . Skits like "The Red Mikado," featuring a blistering number called "Three Little D. A. R.'s Are We;" "Britania Waives the Rules" and "We'd Rather Be Right," are superlative satire guaranteed to unstuff the stuffiest stuffed-shirt in captivity. . . . The actors, Jews, Italians, Negroes, are run-of-the-mine shopworkers who, when their little Broadway fling is ended, will return to their pins and needles and machines and maybe picket lines. . . . But before they do, they will have left a lofty mark for professional Broadway to shoot at. . . . Peters bows low in admiration of that gallant ILGWU crew, the authors, Harold J. Rome, Arthur Arent and others, and all who had a hand in "Pins and Needles."

ANECDOTE: The magazine Ken tells this juicy yarn going the rounds in Rome, which is indicative of how the average Italian regards that Berlin badman. . . . When Hitler heiled into Vienna a year ago, he observed a Jew watching the troops march by. . . . "What," he barked at him, "are you doing here? Don't you know I don't want any Jews here?" . . . The Jew replied: "I have no money so I can't go away." . . . So Hitler gave him 100 marks to get out. . . . A year later, Adolf was heiling into Prague, spotted the same Jew standing on the curb. . . . "You again! What are you doing here?" Hitler roared. . . . "Well," the Jew explained again, "I have no money so I can't do anything but stay here." . . . Hitler reached into his pocket, drew out 100 marks, said: "Here, take this and get out. . . . and don't let me find you in Trieste."

MISH-MASH: Distinguished World's Fair visitor who hasn't made the headlines is Solomon Kahan, Mexico City music critic who discovered Jose Iturbi, the conductor. . . . Kahan, who is covering musical aspects for the Fair for his newspaper, El Universal Grafico, is looking for a publisher for an English version of his "Emotion of Music," Spanish-language volume which was hailed as something extra special by none other than Olin Downes of the Times. . . . Author Arnold Zweig, here from Palestine for the PEN Club congress at the Fair, has such weak eyes that he dictates his copy to his 19-year-old son, Michael, his secretary and traveling companion. . . . The clown who does an Irish cop at the World's Fair—and who is rated the best Irish-cop-clown in sawdust circles—is a chap named Abe Goldstein. . . . The JDC Paris office is expanding its staff by two or possibly three members. . . . A Vienna news item in the American Hebrew includes a one-month child among 124 children who reportedly committed suicide during the year. . . . "Some prodigy!" comments Vic (JTA) Blenstock, who spotted the vital statistic from his tower in London. . . . Rose Marie Reanato, Chicago opera and radio canary who sang for the Workmen's Circle convention in Baltimore recently, is Italian but is married to Dr. Lester Rothman, who is a member of the Workmen's Circle. . . . Mayor LaGuardia, in a full page ad welcoming visitors to the World's Fair, points out that no matter what country they came from they will find a "Landsman" in New York.

Brotherhood Speaker

MECKLENBURGER

National President To Address Meeting

Albert F. Mecklenburger of Chicago, national president of the National Federation of Temple Brotherhoods, has been secured as principal speaker at the banquet meeting of the Temple Brotherhood on Monday evening, May 22, at the Broadmoor Country Club. Election of officers will take place at the meeting.

GUIANA APPROVED

countries have experienced great difficulties in securing permission to leave. It is reliably learned that 2,000 men with permits to enter England for lodging in the Richborough refugee camp were not able to leave the Reich, but it is now believed that they will be allowed to emigrate. As contrasted with other parts of Germany, in Austria there has been no relaxation in pressure for emigration and Jews have been encouraged, even forced, to leave.

Experiment Proposed

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency
NEW YORK—An Anglo-American commission which investigated refugee colonization possibilities in British Guiana has found land "suitable for large scale settlement" and recommends the early establishment of experimental settlements of from 3,000 to 5,000 young men and women at a cost of roughly $3,000,000 for two years. The report of the eight-man commission makes clear that the area is not suitable for immediate large scale colonization, requiring considerable development, improvement and further investigation, but concludes that the South American colony "undoubtedly possesses potential possibilities that would fully justify the carrying out of a trial settlement."

PRICES FOR KILLING DOWN

religious institution, incidentally, supported by the government. As evidenced by the daily toll of victims, the terrorist organization is still far from being crushed, but the terrorists themselves admit that their "good old days" are past. No longer do Arab officials of the government, Arab policemen and prosperous Arab civilians walk in constant dread that someone will sidle up to them with the summons: "The taxi is waiting for you." This was formerly the phrase with which Aref Abdul Razzek, terrorist chieftain, issued his "invitations" to his hideout near Ramallah, in the Jerusalem district, where by beatings and threats of death he extorted cash, promises of "loyalty" and government and police secrets.

Our Film Folk of HOLLYWOOD

By HELEN ZIGMOND

HOLLYWOOD—"It's insane! It's a fantastic nightmare!" says Edward Robinson in "Confessions of a Nazi Spy." And that's one's first reaction as the story unfolds. It's incredible! That such a diabolic monster should be allowed to worm its tentacles into every corner of this country. That in psychological sequence, one follows the picture. "The nerve! . . . the colossal nerve of them with their heels, their Bunds, and their spies, thinking they can take over this country!" This sentiment, uttered by an American, an everyday American, is the closing note of the film. And we hope it will be echoed and re-echoed from coast to coast.

The picture seemed less of an indictment of Germany, which by any thinking audience has been condemned long ago on its own despicable methods—and more of a warning to a passive, quiescent America. Why . . . as in the film . . . are the master minds allowed to escape? Why are such traitors allowed to multiply and fester here? Why are they permitted to enjoy the very liberty which they wish to destroy?

A heavy cordon of plain clothes men was detailed at the Beverly Hills Theater opening night. But the precaution proved unnecessary, for the audience received the picture enthusiastically, stood and cheered at the last fade-out.

Over at Paramount a picture of mystery is in the making. Plot, cast, all names connected with it, and all technical details are veiled in secrecy. Its tentative title is "Heil, America!"

"Juarez" is a drama of epic sweep and dynamic depth . . . and even at this early date has excellent prospect of being the greatest picture of the year. Though painted with the slow strokes of a historical panorama, it emerges a tense drama of today. With its reiterating theme of democracy and its recurrent stress of the Monroe Doctrine, "Juarez," more than "Nazi Spy," is a warning to Fascist aggressors to keep out of the Americas. Paul Muni, with a part which permits of no highlighted histrionics, is nevertheless superb as the stolid, ugly, saturnine Indian hero.

Strange parallel: Off the screen John Garfield idolizes Paul Muni as a model of perfection . . . so in the story, Garfield as General Diaz worships Muni, his leader, his "Presidente." Irving Pichel was in the cast . . . but he was lost somewhere among the sombreros.

Irony: A certain studio once called Ferike Boros to read the part of a Jewish mother. She read it all right . . . but the casting director rejected her because she didn't look Jewish!

Did you hear about the producer who wired Hitler: "Would like to know your 1939-40 war production plans before I make up my film production schedule?"

"Professor Mamlock" has been banned in England—"too political." Whereas in Mexico City the school children were ordered to see it . . . obtained admission at 2 cents a ticket.

Director Sidney Lanfield and Gregory Ratoff shared their natal day with Furore Adolf . . . sent him birthday congratulations on April 20 . . . but he neglected to reciprocate.

Cinema Chips: Dr. Herman Lissauer, former rabbi of Los Angeles, gathered the bibliographical material for "Juarez" . . . collected, within a month, 372 books, documents, letters and photographs. . . . Warners have bought "The Mortal Storm," Phyllis Bottome's anti-Nazi novel. . . . Proceeds from the New York premiere of "Nazi Spy" are to be turned over to the German refugee.

The Editor's Chair:

Early last year, Charles Strull, head of the refugee committee in Louisville, asked me if I had a job on my staff for a German refugee. Of course I couldn't use anyone who spoke English only brokenly, and who although well versed and learned in German, could be of no value to an English-Jewish newspaper. So I said that I was sorry, but it would be impossible for me to help out.

The thought, however, must have stuck with me, for about three days later it occurred to me that a refugee would make a perfect circulation salesman. Naturally he would call only on Jewish people, and the double appeal of refugee and Anglo-Jewish newspaper should be effective.

So Mr. Strull sent me the refugee and I put him to work. He went throughout the state, although he didn't even know the city, and he made many contacts. Everyone was kind and helpful. His English soon improved and he secured a more fundamental knowledge of the locality in which he was settling than many men who have lived here all their lives.

The refugee stayed with me for about three or four months. In that time he was able to sign affidavits for the visas for his wife and small child, and everyone was happy. He saved his money like our parents probably did when they first came to this nation, and in many cases would not spend even for food.

But soon my refugee came to tell me that he was leaving me. He had saved enough money to buy a second-hand truck, and was making an arrangement with a laundry to solicit business on a commission basis. Of course I had no complaint. He had been a very diligent and successful employee. And now he is earning a steady income and is very happy.

This summer I employed another refugee. He is as honest as a mailman and has as much pride as King George. I have seen him bawl out a prospective subscriber who offered him $2 instead of $1.50 so that he could keep the extra money. In fact, if you know your refugees, most of them are that way.

But last week he went to a small town in northern Indiana. Only five Jewish families reside there. He called on the leader in the community, a man who is on many state-wide committees. And do you know what our refugee was told. It was explained to him how disgraceful it was for him to solicit subscriptions

Martyrdom

To the never-ending list of Jewish martyrdoms add that of Colonel Ascoli, regimental commander in the Italian army.

Ordered into retirement as a Jew, Colonel Ascoli received permission to deliver a farewell address to his regiment. Be ready to die for your country, Colonel Ascoli admonished the soldiers he had led into combat. Without further ado, Colonel Ascoli covered his face with the regimental flag, drew his revolver, and committed suicide.

News of the dramatic suicide was withheld from the Italian press, but Capt. R. M. Stephen of the British Army divulged the incident in a letter to the English Churchman, a British publication.

When Mussolini reaches his permanent abode in Hell, this paper hopes he is forced to view a continuous film showing Colonel Ascoli's suicide, in technicolor.

Plaudits For Herman Horowitz Deserved

Those who know Herman L. Horowitz, publisher of The Jewish Transcript, of Seattle, Wash., expressed no surprise at the public ceremonies held in connection with the paper's fifteenth anniversary. Dignitaries of the city and state, fellow publishers of the daily papers, leaders of Catholicism and Protestantism all joined in congratulating the man who as late as 1924 saw the potentialities in a wide-awake, alert and vigorous anglo-Jewish newspaper serving Jewry of Washington and the Northwest.

In a field of journalism from which only a few draw any satisfactory financial reward and practically no public recognition; in fact, in a field through which only the most courageous travel unscathed, Herman Horowitz has established a name and a reputation which in so short a time has won him not only local but national respect as well.

Current Comment

The General Jewish Council Comes in for More Criticism From the Buffalo Jewish Review and the Reconstructionist—The following excerpt from an editorial, reprinted from the Reconstructionist, is a timely examination of the General Jewish Council, formed of the four big organizations for the purpose of bringing about unity in American Jewish life:

"Last August in Pittsburgh there was formed the General Council for Jewish Rights (since renamed the General Jewish Council) embracing representatives of the American Jewish Committee, the American Jewish Congress, the B'nai B'rith and the Jewish Labor Committee. Hope was then expressed by individual Jews and organizations that this new General Council spelled the end of chaos and shtadlanut in American Jewish life, and that henceforth American Jewry could look forward confidently to a responsible and effective centralized leadership.

"But what leadership has the General Council for Jewish Rights manifested in the latest crisis? Have the constituent organizations and individual members been called upon to express their protest in some concrete fashion? Has any attempt been made to mobilize the masses in organized protest and to translate their indignation into effective action? The most that the council has done, so far as the public record is concerned, is to issue a statement declaring that 'it is our hope that . . . the people of this and other countries, having expressed their sense of courage, will join in a determined effort not alone to save the victims of oppression in lands across the sea but to preserve the institutions of democracy and the security of our civilization.'"

Jews of America, looking for leadership, find themselves left instead like sheep without a shepherd. And they seize upon various well-meant but rather pathetic devices for carrying on the terrible necessary fight against anti-Semitism by themselves. We are, for instance, being threatened with an epidemic of buttons. There is the button of the Jewish War Veterans, "Fight Communism," which is supposed to take the eye of every Gentile passerby and convince him instantly of the fact that Jews are not Communists. Then there's the neat little patriotic badge, done in stars and stripes on an enameled shield, which carries the legend "I'm American." To be consistent, and to complete the denials of all charges against Jews, why not buttons announcing "Jews Are Not Bankers," "Jews Are Not Cannibals," "Jews Did Not Cause the Chicago Fire or the San Francisco Earthquake"?

Please be assured that we are not trying to belittle the efforts of all the good and sincere people who think they are helping the cause by wearing these buttons. If we believed it helped, we should be content to be covered with buttons from head to foot, like a coster at the Derby. But we fear that the simple act of wearing a button and then becoming reassured by doing so that we were doing something concrete to solve the Jewish problem would only serve to dull our vigilance and divert us from the pressing tasks facing us.

Z. Tygel Says Widespread Distribution of "Mein Kampf" a Mistake—What else but an aberration can we term the attitude of the publishers and sponsors of the unabridged English version—not one but three separate translations have been issued simultaneously in America—of Hitler's "Mein Kampf"? To justify this step the publishers announced that the proceeds from the sale of the books would go to the refugees from Nazi-land. To obtain a favorable sale, they put forth the fallacious argument that the book would constitute its own boomerang, its own best enemy. In other words, it was assumed that by reading "Mein Kampf" Americans, being civilized and enlightened, would quickly see through Hitler's ridiculous pseudo-scientific ideas, that they would be revolted by his hysterical spoutings and would thus be better prepared to fight this arch-enemy of democracy.

On such fantastic grounds, influential Jews as well as non-Jews have urged the widespread distribution of this utterly contemptible, poisonous, horrible anti-Semitic work of a sinister paranoiac, who has succeeded, through a fateful concatenation of historical circumstances, in enslaving the German nation and now seeks to enslave the rest of humanity. This is as much as to say: Let all and sundry read the "philosophy" of the Fuehrer—let all and sundry become acquainted with his program, cunningly contrived to appeal to the lowest instincts of the ignorant masses—let all and sundry ponder the words of "Mein Kampf" and conclude for themselves that the author is a menace to humanity.

Do not these naive people realize how dangerous their procedure is?

It is noteworthy that the publishers queried the leading Jewish organizations in this country on the subject and sought permission to place their names on the list of prominent endorsers of the preposterous plan. The use of their names was refused by the Jewish organizations, but they did not utter one word of protest. Moreover, leaders of these organizations, in their individual capacities, did not hesitate to join the roster of sponsors.

In consequence of this, the mania for spreading "Mein Kampf" has extended from the book publishing field to the newspapers, some of which, including an important metropolitan daily in New York, are being emboldened to reprint Hitler's venomous masterpiece in tabloid supplement form, to make it accessible to the hundreds of thousands who cannot afford the price of a volume. To justify this dangerous and inexcusable action, a few cartoons satirizing Hitler will be included, while those sections of "Mein Kampf" preaching hate of other powers and urging German supremacy over the world will be displayed in bold face. The newspapers, like the book publishers, have received the tacit approval of the Jewish leaders.

Now, it seems to me, that if circulating "Mein Kampf" in this wholesale fashion can be construed as a good campaign strategy against Hitlerism, why not, with equal logic, lend our support to the spread of the dastardly "Protocols of the Elders of Zion," Father Coughlin's anti-Semitic radio speeches and other propaganda material of the dark forces that are striving to destroy the Jews, democracy and civilization itself? It is sufficient to state this proposition to see the absurdity of it.

Books

Bobbs-Merrill, Indianapolis. GOING HOME, Ernst Harthern. By Rabbi Maurice Goldblatt

This book is more than a story of travel; it records the homecoming of a soul. It tells the story of the author, a former German journalist, and his visit to Palestine in the spring of 1933. It is beautifully written by a man who has a keen sense of appreciation of the wonders of nature, the nobility of the arts, and the dignity of the human spirit.

Harthern felt he had to visit Palestine. For years, distant from his religion and his people, he awoke one day to a realization of his attachment to Israel and the land of Israel. Only a visit to the land, a "going home," would satisfy him.

An acquaintance said to him: "Nobody is ever surprised at anything here." So it proved to be true. Harthern found a strange and exciting picture in the contrast and extremes, in the topography, the climate and the people; their classes, outlook, mode of living and civilization, from ancient to modern.

Over all that was happening in the land there seemed to him to be a spell. The wholehearted spirit of sacrifice, of devotion and unselfishness; the willingness to give unstintingly of time and thought and energy—all of this for the land—caused an exultation of the spirit which the writer had never known before.

Completing his visit, having seen with his own eyes the miracles which have been performed in the reclaiming and rebuilding of the land, the author is convinced that he has found a home where there will be safety, security, serenity for heart and soul.

Every lover of Eretz Israel should read this book for the new inspiration it will give.

to a Jewish paper. The objection was not to the newspaper, because the merchant subscribed to the Forwards and many others, but it was to the fact that a refugee was trying to make an honest living by selling subscriptions.

I have a healthy dislike for such leaders. Their objection is not so much to the actual case, but more in the fact that they were not consulted, or that something was done by someone else beside themselves and without their knowledge. They don't want to subscribe that is their privilege.

Our refugee has a wife and child to support. He does not intend to sell subscriptions for us all his life. The next conscientious objector has the opportunity of doing himself a great mitzvah by offering to help the refugee find a better job, or better yet, give him a job himself.
